A Transportation Equity Forum: February 2

The Boston Region Metropolitan Planning Organization (MPO) is developing Paths to a Sustainable Region, the next regional Long-Range Transportation Plan. Paths to a Sustainable Region will guide federal investment in the transportation system over the next 20 years.

One of the first steps in developing the Plan is to assess the transportation needs of the region. A series of workshops will be held in February to present the MPO's draft needs assessment and seek input from the public. The MPO will use the final needs assessment in developing a set of projects and programs to address the region's needs.
